THAT BIG BAD WOLF WAS JUST DOG

Three St. Catharines Hunters Didn't Shoot What They Thought They Did — Just a Wild Dog With Extra Long Fangs.

The "wolf" shot by three St. Catharines hunters near Smithville on February 21st was not a wolf, but a wild dog, according to word received last week by County Clerk W. H. Millward from the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries.

There was some doubt from the first about the identity of the animal, but none were more doubtful than the three hunters themselves. On the night of their expedition they refused to comment until more expert opinion was passed. They showed the catch to veteran hunters and furriers, all of whom were convinced that it was a black brush wolf.

Game Overseer F. F. Lamoureaux said it had some characteristics of a dog, but the unusually long fangs inclined him to the belief that it was a wolf.

The men decided to submit it to the experts of the Provincial Department of Game and Fish, who examine all pelts before a bounty

Scotch And Rye Thieves Loot

Goods To The Value of $729 Stolen From Local Liquor Store — Force Cellar Door — A New Shipment.

Smashing their way through a heavy wooden door, thieves gained entrance to the local liquor store, sometime during last Thursday evening and Friday morning and decamped with scotch and rye whiskeys to the value of $729.

The marauders first pried open the drop doors enclosing the runway to the cellar entrance, then by using pinch bars and a fine, rapier-like piece of steel succeeded in prying the heavily barred cellar door open sufficiently to get underneath the heavy 2x4 wooden bars and raise it out of position thus allowing the door to swing open.

Making their way upstairs they easily located the shipment of scotch and high grade rye liquors that had only been received at the store late on Thursday afternoon and had not yet been opened and placed on the shelves. Approximately 19 and a half cases were stolen, and carted away in either a car or a light truck.

Discovery of the robbery was made when C. T. Farrell, Vendor of the store, opened up for business. He immediately contacted Acting Chief of Police Alf. LePage.

Raise Tax Rate In County Town

Increase Of One Mill Over Last Year — First Jump Since 1938 — Post War Work Provided For.

Marking the first increase in the total tax rate in St. Catharines since 1938, council Monday night adopted a 1944 tax rate of 33½ mills, a mill above the 1943 rate of 32½ which had been the lower rate since 1938.

The 1944 budget presented by Ald. John Smith chairman of finance provides for a total expenditure of $1,218,200 or $78,103 more than last year. The tax levy will be raised $1,045,199, $201,401 will be collected through the provincial or mill subsidy and $71,622 has been brought forward as the 1943 surplus.

An extensive budget report presented by Finance Commissioner S. K. Watt explained that while the rate is up one mill over last year, 1½ mills or $45,000 has been set aside for postwar projects with

This war is writing an epic in the world's medical history. Thousands of lives of wounded men have been saved already by the prompt use of dried blood serum, administered at the scene of battle.

"Plasma is almost as necessary as food and has become routine in the treatment of battle casualties," the head of a front-line hospital states.

Wounded soldiers who get their "second chance" from blood donated back home in Red Cross Clinics by Canadians who care, sometimes ask for a blood serum can for a souvenir. Just to show that it was from the "folks back home" that his new lease on life came.

Because of the absolute necessity of this precious serum, it is transported up to the front lines and administered right in the shadow of gun fire. Doctors have had bottles of plasma shot from their hands. Some medical men have been wounded in the act of giving it.

The greatest value of plasma, according to the Army doctors, is the relieving of shock. Nearly every severely injured person passes into a state known as traumatic shock. This is in many cases a merciful release from suffering, but it is also a sign that life is ebbing out.

Blood transfusions as shock treatment are regarded as a major medical development of this age. Nearly half the wounded are now being returned to battle duty and many others are recovering.

"There is no substitute for blood plasma as we use it today," is the claim of major medical men dealing with the wounded on the battlefronts of the world.

"Blood serum has saved the lives of hundreds and thousands. It gives medicine and surgery chances they did not have in the last war."

"Tell the people at home to keep it coming in a never-ending supply," is the concerted plea of army doctors who bend their skill to the saving of lives.

You can do your share in saving some fighting man's life by donating your blood. Next Blood Clinic in Grimsby is next Wednesday. Call "Bill" Hewson and offer to donate. He will give you full particulars and instructions.

Boys In Italy Also Give Blood

B-15264, Sgt. Rummery, Italy 21, 2, 44.

Hi Bones:

Just a few lines, thanking you for the "dependent and a chance to do a little visiting in the home town. It really is appreciated and well, its good having the home town paper in Italy, it sure gets around, thanks to you. I see Chris Chester wrote a letter to good old Gord (Hannah) for some smokes. Gord, I sure would like to be at Gord's palace right now lapping up a couple of quarts of good old Canadian beer. I might even see old George Werner and even see "Tommy" in there. Well Bones, I had better cut that out, or I'll be getting homesick. Fine chance eh? after three years, but reading the paper sure brings back a lot of memories and old faces again.

Thank "Cammy" for my regular carton of smokes, and the people making this possible. I know it will make them feel pretty good to know they are coming through regularly, and how much the boys appreciate them. Also thank the Lincoln Loyalist Chapter for the

Dearest Mum, Dad and All:

Thank you very much for all the most welcome letters, which I received shortly after Christmas. I had 3 letters, an air mail, 300 cigarettes, so now it seems all your mail is now catching up with me. I had ever so many letters, nine Christmas cakes from all I knew back in Canada, but so far there has been no parcels come in, no one had very many of them by the 25th of December. It takes a while to come through you know, as they all take up so much room on a ship. They are beginning to all letters and papers. The weather out here has now turned very cold, still no snow so far, but a very cold whistling wind blows 24 hours a day down from the snow-capped mountains. I've got winter underwear on, heavy socks, boots and puttees, then a shirt, my battledress and a leather jerkin and the wind gets through all that at times. Say that piece about Den in the paper was pretty good. I showed it to some of the

Grimsby Girl In Operatic Roles

Miss Heloise Macklem Star Of Gilbert And Sullivan Productions — Has A Rich Soprano Voice.

(Contributed)

During the week of March 6th, Miss Heloise Macklem, a former Grimsby girl, was singing leading roles in the Eaton Opera Society's Gilbert and Sullivan productions to thrilled thousands of Toronto theatre-goers at the Eaton Auditorium.

The operettas were the familiar H.M.S. Pinafore, and the less known but quaintly beautiful Ruddigore. The productions are under the direction and baton of Thomas J. Crawford, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O. Ruddigore, the only one produced at the time of writing of this article, has twelve main characters, a chorus of forty-four, and a wonderful orchestra of twenty-one performers. The scenery was splendid, the costumes the best obtainable anywhere.

Miss Macklem played Rose Maybud in Ruddigore, which was the female lead, and an excellent vehicle for the display of her light though rich, soprano voice. A graduate of the famous Juillard School of Music in New York,

Grimsby People Still Carry On

In The Fifth Year Of The War Our English Cousins Bomb Red And Weary Are Still Smiling.

(Grimsby, Eng. News)

Through four years of war Grimsby has carried on, not begrudgingly, not with weary looks and complaining, but generally with a smile. It has stood up to enemy attacks, and through it all, in addition to keeping its own flag flying, it has bent with a will to the helping of the nation in its efforts.

One of the handicaps of war is the need of secrecy. There was one occasion, a year or two ago, when Grimsby achieved something which would have surprised the world. In other days the news would have been broadcast with gusto. As things are, any public reference to the matter must be left until the return of peace.

All too frequently the mistake is made of regarding all work out-

45 Mill Tax Rate In Beamsville

One Mill Higher Than Last Year — Over One-half Of Levy Is Used For School Purposes.

Beamsville's tax rate for 1944 was set at a special meeting of council Friday night at 45 mills, this being an increase of one mill over last year. Dates for payment of taxes were changed to May 1 and November 1 and a 2 per cent discount will be allowed on prepayments of November taxes if paid on or before May 1.

Council members spent the entire evening paring municipal estimates to the bone so that last year's rate for village purposes could be repeated. This was quite a job in view of the fact that garbage collection this year will amount to one and one-quarter mills.

The one mill increase is due to the high school rate being up a mill as compared to the 1943 figure when it was four mills higher than in 1942. Increase in the high school rate, it was pointed out, is due to the decrease in attendance of county pupils at the school. Over one-half of the 45-mill levy is made up in public and high school rates over which the municipal council has no control.

FACTS & FANCIES

Frank Fairborn, Jr.

NO TIME TO SLACKEN

With the feeling of victory in the air there is apt to be a change in our attitude towards war work. And if we are not careful the idea will take hold that we can afford to take things easily because victory is a foregone conclusion.

To regard victory on the home or the fighting fronts as something that is coming inevitably and of its own accord is highly dangerous. To slacken our efforts is to invite disaster, and to divert too much of our energies to plans for post-war life is to build castles in the air which have no foundations at all. Before those foundations can even be laid we must defeat the enemy in the field and win the economic battle at home.

There are those who underestimate the danger in which Canada stood from inflation two years ago and still cling to the comfortable theory that "it couldn't happen here." The answer to that is that it was actually happening, and it was the rapidly increasing degree of inflation that caused the Government to undertake the price ceiling policy at the end of 1941.

There are others who think that with the establishment of controls the battle is over and the time already come to start relaxing. The answer to this is that the tremendous pressure against the price ceiling has not eased in the slightest. To start giving ground even in small ways, is to jeopardize all the success that has been achieved in holding the inflationary spiral in check.

Perhaps one of the best ways to judge the extent of that pressure is to compare the present position with that of the end of the last war. A very serious degree of inflation was evident between 1917 and 1920 and was followed by an incredible amount of economic confusion and personal hardship.

The main factor leading to that state of things was, as it is today, the diversion of national income to war expenditure. But in the last war the proportion of national income devoted to war purposes was only 12-15%, whereas Canada today is spending over 50%.

LET CHILDREN HAVE PETS

Children and their pets—the dog and the cat—are tied in bonds of affection deeper and stronger than unthinking people understand. To the child, his pet is his friend and companion. He shares his happiest hours with him, and he gathers comfort from the feel and the presence of him when his closest adult friends fail him.

A child will share his cherished treat with his dog, or his cat, and he wants him close to him when he goes to bed. A child feels secure in the love and loyalty of his pet in the night, that time of darkness and loneliness when anything can happen and doesn't because Rover is there.

There is nothing and nobody to take the place of a boy's dog. The boy is about ten or fifteen years of age when he needs his pet this way. He talks to him as he cannot talk to a human being. He expresses deep, swelling feelings he cannot put in words, by stroking his dog, holding his paw, walking with him, holding him close. Do let him and his dog enjoy each other for the few brief years they can be together. A dog's life is short at best.

Old people, and lonely people need their pets. Don't make a fuss about the fuss they make over their pets. Try to understand that the dog, the cat, the bird that they love fills an empty aching place in their hearts so that almost ceases to hurt too much. When you are old, or ailing or lonely some day you will understand. Just now take their word for it. They need their pets.

The war has taken enough of a toll from our lives now, and is likely to take more. Let's hold on to our pets and get what comfort we can from their loving, loyal companionship.

He was a brown mutt, with nose black as smut, And a tail that curled up and around— With beady black eyes, that could not disguise Their love for each playmate he found.

He played with the cat with never a spat, Chasing her up and down through the hall; When she'd show her claws, he'd just lick her paws— Happy-go-lucky—that's all!

But late yesterday I laid him away— He was poisoned by some brutal hand; How such an end could come to man's best friend Is something I can't understand.

The cat's plaintive meow is all I hear now, And gone is her once playful strut; She's missing her fun—I'm missing the one And only little brown shaggy mutt.

THE PADRE

It is engraven in the records of Canada what a nobility of service was rendered in the last war, and what a high example was set by the late Canon F. L. Scott, who recently died in Quebec City. His name is imperishable in Canadian Army records. In this war, the chaplain, ready to "preach or to die" is giving a gallant service.

Calling attention to the killing of an American padre when ministering to a wounded soldier, on the Italian battlefield and the winning of decorations for valor by others, The New York Sunday Times pays worthy tribute to these men of the cloth who have left the safety of their home parishes for all the dangers wherever a soldier, airman or navy man is to be found.

The New York paper says, in part:

They mark the graves of the fallen. They write letters of comfort to the home folks of the wounded. They solace the sick. They give hope to men despairing of life in the field hospitals. And they listen to the troubles that burden the soldier's heart—troubles the soldier will confide to no one but "the padre." Scores of tales of the devotion of their calling come back from the fighting fronts. One chaplain is nicknamed "The Lord's Postman." One constructs a portable sanctuary, air-borne, for men in lonely jungle outposts. One makes a worthy communion chalice out of fragments of a wrecked plane. A Negro chaplain does his bit for Army morale as pastor of a labor battalion engaged in the dull, glamorous drudgery of a supply line far behind the battle zone. Characteristic of them all is one chaplain who wins the Silver Star, yet won't talk of his exploit. A modern Saint Paul, he says, "I could tell of narrow escapes, of strafings, bombings, digging for my life, hunger and thirst, and many other things which are mere incidents along the way." But he prefers to tell of the courage and the patient endurance of the men of his outfit, which to him are a sign of "lovely and imperishable things in each soldier's heart and memory."

What is thus written about the American chaplain may well be written of the Canadian and the Britisher in general. Their services are all volunteered, but just the same they are all conscripts of duty.

THE GRAND TOTAL

Last week in a newspaper office a found lady's bag was investigated and revealed the following total: Coin purse, small mirror, key case, identification card, watch, five paper handkerchiefs, ration book holder with books, make-up case (powder puff, rouge, lipstick), memorandum book, cheque book, folder containing two snapshots, small coin purse containing keys, stamps and odd items, loose bunch of keys, pencil, tape measure, empty perfume bottle, box of compresses, soup cubes, war savings stamp book, flashlight, rubber band, etc.

The etc., it was explained, consisted of a number of letters and cards and some intimate personal articles.

Bags like these—and worse—are carried under women's arms hour after hour and mile after mile, and yet we still refer to them as the weaker sex.

'WAY BACK WHEN

Frank Fairborn, Jr.

(J. V. McAre, in Globe and Mail)

On King Street one afternoon last week we saw a man with a fur cap. And, what made the sight even odder, he was wearing it. The thing made an impression on us, for it is a long time since we have seen a respectfully dressed adult wearing a fur cap on a Toronto street. It is much commoner to see men, even in the depth of winter, wearing no hat at all; and yet we can remember a time when nobody went bareheaded, and every man and boy in the city wore either a fur cap or an imitation of one, from November to March.

As far as imitations are concerned, the most popular among boys was a black cloth cap covered with little curls of wool to resemble Persian lamb. We can remember having a Persian lamb cap and feeling rather embarrassed because the other boys in the neighborhood wore imitations; and we asked our father to take back our fur cap and buy us an imitation. He laughed. Young people, as has often been noted, are the most conservative people living. They want to look like other boys, neither more prosperous nor more poverty-stricken.

Long after our boyhood the wearing of furs by men was all but universal. We gather they must have been cheap, for at a time when newspaper reporters were not among the highly paid members of the community they wore fur caps and fur gauntlets, and either fur coats or fur collars. One evening, just before the show was to begin at the old Princess Theatre, the English manager of the visiting company was standing beside John Nolan, who was taking tickets at the door. A young man with a fur cap and gauntlets walked past and exchanged a nod with the ticket taker, but presented no ticket. "Who's that?" inquired the manager, who had a financial interest in the gate. "Why, that's Mr. Charlesworth of the News," replied Nolan. Another critic in a fur coat, carrying a fur cap, walked past with a nod to Nolan. "Who's that?" asked the manager. "Why that's Mr. Parkhurst of The Globe." The third critic appeared, again furred about the neck and head. "And who's that?" inquired the manager. "That's Mr. Grange of The Mail and Empire," said the doorman. The manager ruminated for a moment, and then remarked: "Airy lot, ain't they?"

Around the beginning of the century one could buy a fur-lined coat for about what he would now pay for a good suit. We recall one lined with very dark muskrat skins, a Persian lamb collar and a shell of the best broadcloth, which cost about $75, and would last half a lifetime. In those days one would think it a sign of abject poverty to wear muskrat so that it was visible. The skins we used exclusively for linings by those who could not afford beaver or mink. In fact, mink was the about as common as muskrat is now, while only tamsters wore coonskins, which were about of the same social standing as buffalo hides.

Every rig had a buffalo robe, but whether they were from the buffaloes or the more available steers, we do not remember. Prosperous citizens wore sealskin overcoats and hotelkeepers used to wear peaked sealskin caps when they stepped out behind a slick trotter or pacer on Sunday afternoons. One who could not sport a handsome fur coat would be regarded as an impending bankrupt who kept out of the way of his creditors.

As the Alaska seal became scarcer there was introduced among women the spurious seallette, which was a kind of plush, and at a distance of a few hundred yards gave the impression of seal. Later still, clever furriers were able to take the commoner furs and dub them into something that looked rich and rare, gave them fancy names, such as Tasmanian mink or Skeneateles otter, permitting humbler citizens to vie, at least in their own minds, with the wearers of genuine mink, sable and Alaska seal. Mea, we say it to their honor, never wore seallette, but of later years some of them have fallen into a deplorable habit of wearing overcoats of some sort of wool, brushed so as to give the impression that the individual threads are standing on tiptoe, and thus presenting a remembrance to the fur of some wild, weird animal which if reported by a hunter would earn for him the reputation of being a liar. In modern times, largely because of the motor car, and heated streets cars, men have learned that they can endure a Toronto winter without furs; and so far have some of our native resources been depleted that a man in a coonskin coat is accepted as a man in receipt of a large salary or the son of a wealthy and indulgent father.

We were reminded of another change in men's fashions the other day when we wondered idly what had become of a leather-bound box that used to stand on a dressing table. It was about eight or nine inches high and four inches across, and the sides were round. We think that we might safely have shown it to a group of young people and awarded a prize to the infant prodigy who could have guessed what it was. Well, it was a cuff box; that's what it was. It had its uses when cuffs were not an integral part of a man's shirt, but were detached, and snapped over the wrists when one was about to present himself for public inspection. When a man returned home he would take off his cuffs, just as naturally as he would take off his boots and get his feet into carpet slippers. The box was used to hold cuffs that had been returned from the laundry, and gave them a voluptuous curve so that when applied they would fit smoothly inside the sleeve of the coat. These detachable cuffs, we believe, went out with the fur gauntlets that were always getting lost.

Speaking Of Breakfast

There are breakfasts and breakfasts! Is yours one that will give your body the best possible start for the day's work and recreation that lies ahead—or is it merely the cup of coffee that gives brief stimulation without providing energy and stamina? To start the day without breakfast is like trying to run an automobile without gas or oil.

If we slight breakfast, it is almost impossible to secure a sufficient amount of food, and the recommended daily amounts of those important food essentials at the other meals. Someone has stated that "if more children ate an adequate breakfast before coming to school, we would see more A's on the report cards and fewer A's in the register because of illness."

An adequate breakfast is a nourishing meal that will supply the foods which you are not apt to eat in the other meals, and also is a meal that is substantial in "breaking the fast" and supplying energy for a new day. An adequate breakfast also contains the energy-giving foods and the regulating foods. It should supply about one-fourth of the daily calories, and should always be considered in planning the day's meals as a whole.

Growing children need to have fruit or fruit juice, a cooked whole-grain cereal, occasionally interchanged with a ready-to-eat cereal, an egg, toast, and all the milk they can drink.

Remember that good breakfasts get the day off to a good start.

Rural Storekeeper Airs His Views

It was a little country store built where four corners meet, where farmers and neighbours passing by just naturally stopped for a bit of gossip, a plug of tobacco or a quart of molasses.

You could look right back through the store into the clean little kitchen beyond—bright linoleum, a shiny stove, one end of the table with a checkered cloth, where the couple who ran the store lived out their quiet days, sober, steady, and kindly. They were life-long friends of their customers who 'abided by the law' as he said, and would do anything they were asked to do to help along the war effort.

"How do you feel about the price ceiling?" we asked. "After over two years of trying it out, do you really think it's been worthwhile?"

He leaned over the counter and pointed a finger at me like a school teacher. "It's the only thing that keeps us little fellows in business," he said quietly. "Without a price ceiling we would have been driven to the wall long ago. We're little business, you know, not very powerful, but this is our living, my wife and I, and John who is in Italy."

He pulled a crumpled, greasy looking letter from his inside pocket and went on. "It's a queer thing but before John went away, he hated the store! Said it was too small for him, he wanted something big so he'd get rich. But just before Christmas we got this letter from him. He ran a stubby finger along the page to find the place. 'Here it is . . . Gee, Dad . . . I used to think that old store was sort of beneath me, but not any more. Sometimes through the grey smoke and dust it, it kind of swims before my eyes . . . the little white counters, bright pictures on the canned tomatoes and corn, those jars of hard candy I used to dip into when I was a kid.'

"That's all that keeps me going out here in the mud and loneliness, the thought of that little store with you and mother working like beavers."

"Keep it for me, Dad—that's what I want to do when I come home again just be a darn good storekeeper like you, counting eggs, weighing out sugar, talking with the neighbours when they come in, being decent and honest, filling up the little shelves . . . taking my place in the community."

"Well, that's what he says," the storekeeper said, on, wiping his eyes with the back of his hand. "That's what we want, just to keep the place going until Johnny comes home. And price ceilings, and the way they're distributing goods so the little fellow gets his share, gives us the chance. It's the answer to prayer, as far as we're concerned. Johnny's a great boy and I can tell you Ma and I are pretty proud of him."

Canadian rubber has to be good . . . it has to be the best synthetic rubber on the market! Every chemical that goes into the making of buna-S and butyl rubber at the government-owned synthetic rubber plant near Sarnia, Ontario, has to be checked and double-checked in the Polymer Corporation's own laboratory and the rubber itself is put through a series of rigid tests. In the picture above, a young worker hands her lab mate a piece of buna-S rubber for testing its tensile strength.

Hello Homemakers! Butter bought with coupons 52 and 53 must be made to last until March 23rd. This will be no hardship for the thrifty homemaker. The elimination of meat rationing will enable folk to get ample of this heat-providing food, because now they may purchase more bacon and other pork products that contain a lot of good fat to substitute for butter.

Render fat trimmings, using low heat. Cool quickly and put in a glass or enamel container. Cover and store in the upper part of the electric refrigerator. Another amount of dripping may be added whenever fat meat is bought. Do, however, keep different kinds of drippings in separate containers—beef in one jar, pork in one jar, and chicken, duck or goose in another. Lamb or mutton fat is the least successful fat for re-use.

When you use these Victory fats in place of butter, use two tablespoons less of the drippings per cup than of butter or other commercial shortening.

Pan Broiled Bacon
Place slices of bacon in a cold frying pan. Do not overcrowd the pan. Cook slowly. Turn bacon to cook evenly. If crisp bacon is desired, pour out fat as it accumulates.

Broiled Bacon
Place slices of bacon on broiling rack. Broil about three inches from top electric element of oven. Turn to cook evenly.

Picnic or Boston Butt
Better grades may be baked like ham, or water cooked. Cover with water, simmer, but do not boil. Allow about 30 to 40 minutes per pound. Cook until tender.

Everyday Cake
2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1/4 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 cup lard, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift together all the dry ingredients, and blend about 1/2 cup of the mixture with the lard until very soft and light. Add the unbeaten eggs and beat well. Add all the rest of the dry ingredients together with about 1/2 cup of milk to which the vanilla has been added. Stir smooth. Add the rest of the milk and stir smooth again. Bake in 2 eight-inch layer pans in with the sugar and egg yolks. Add the milk and vanilla alternately with the flour and salt to make a dough stiff enough to handle. Chill thoroughly. Toss on a lightly floured board. Roll, cut with shamrock cutter, brush tops of shamrock with egg white, sprinkle with green sugar and bake in electric oven at 400° F. six to eight minutes. Green sugar is coarse granulated sugar sprinkled with one drop of green colouring.

Butter Spread

(Suggested by J.B.)

We make one full cup of unsweetened custard using 1 cup of rich top milk, one or two egg yolks and 1/2 teaspoon of salt. Cook in top of double boiler and strain. Half a cup of butter is allowed to stand at room temperature until it is soft enough to beat but not oily, then the almost cold custard is whipped into it. This makes one pound of stretched butter from half a pound of butter.

Take a Tip:

1. Instead of using butter, grease pans with other mild flavoured fats.

2. Drippings from beef and pork roasts can be used in meat and vegetable dishes, and for pan-frying many foods.

3. Instead of using butter in cream sauces for vegetables, substitute other fats.

4. Grated cheese on vegetables also will take the place of butter.

5. With baked potatoes, cut a gash in the top and squeeze open—put butter on when served.

6. If crusts are to be cut off bread for sandwiches, this should be done before buttering.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. S. asks: How do you render fat without it spattering over the range?

Answer. We render or try out fat by putting it in a deep pan and placing it over low heat for some time.

Of you may render it in the top part of a double boiler. Pieces of potato heated with the fat will absorb some of the flavour and make the natural taste less strong.

Mrs. M. C. says: Since we can't get as much butter as usual, what can I use to furnish Vitamin A in the menu?

Answer: Vitamin A found in butter is also found in other sources. Serve grated raw carrots or raw beets moistened with mayonnaise. Liver contains much of this important vitamin; and children who take a teaspoon of cod liver oil daily, receive an adequate amount.

Hold on, Little Fella—we're coming!

"Yes, babies have felt the impact we just like the rest of us. But big trouble has been the diaper shortage. It's been difficult for them and their Mothers, because our looms were busy making hundreds of vital military items. But we're beginning to switch gradually back to some civilian production, and diaper cloth is high on our list of urgently needed goods.

No, the stores will not be bulging with diapers next week—that won't happen till the war's all over. And you have to remember that as we produce more there will likely be a let-up in imports.

The general supply picture will improve slightly. But more of those long-time favourites of Canadian-made goods will be available.

There is no hope for an increased sugar ration nor for increased rationing sugar allotments this year, the Prices Board has announced through its sugar administrator, S. R. Noble. The administrator revealed that the world supply of sugar is "extremely tight" and that there are indications of an over-all world shortage. Canada imports four-fifths of her total sugar supply, Mr. Noble pointed out. This is allocated to us from a world pool under an agreement between Canada, Great Britain and the United States.

A Beautiful Crop Of Hairy Foliage

Grimsby citizens strolling on Main street, last weekend, viewed for the first time in many a decade, a real luxuriant crop of whiskers. A growth of foliage, that back in the Gay 90's would have been the envy of every man in the district.

This lovely hirsute adornment belonged to Nellie Rutherford and many an older citizen thought at first glance that it was his well known Uncle Cyress Nelles that had arrived back in our midst.

Nelles has been on heavy construction work in Labrador for the past 14 months and as is the custom of that cold, icy country had grown a beard. To say the least he made a great success of it.

Mystery Shooting In Beamsville

Edward Ryckman, member of Beamsville municipal council, reported late Friday night that as he was walking home from a council meeting a little before midnight, five shots were fired and the bullets came so close that "he heard them whistle over his head."

There was no suggestion of any one firing at Mr. Ryckman and why the shots were fired at all is something of a mystery. According to the police, Mr. Ryckman was walking along Hixon street in front of what is known as the Riggin property when he heard the shots from either a revolver or rifle. He did not see any one at the time, it was stated.

Chief Constable George Seymour is investigating.

Navy League News

Our Tag Day will be held on Saturday, June 3rd, by permission of the Grimsby Council.

Books and magazines continue to flow in; kit alas! we never have enough.

Our lady friends are knitting energetically, so much so that we are able to send Toronto a full carton each month by express, arriving the following day, at a total cost of 40 cents! Toronto ships them out as fast as they arrive, so imperative is the demand.

Here is a story out of too many of the same type: A merchant ship fighting her way eastward in the Atlantic. Temperature was 13° below zero. The ship had become covered with ice, lashed by great seas. Her destination was the port of Louisiana. But it was not possible to enter: so the captain, in order to save his crew, ran his ship on a rocky shore. Signals fiercely were sent out, and the Navy League were ordered to prepare to care for the men when rescued. The seas ran so high that it was a hour before any boat could gear enough to take off the crew. During this terrible period 12 men became encased in ice; froze to their stations! They were literally carried into the Navy League hostel where 12 men and women of that small hamlet of a few hundred people provided them with every possible care. Their clothing, ice and all, had to be cut off their bodies from head to foot in their limbs, swelling to abnormal proportions when in contact with warm air, had to be massaged in order to restore circulation. The water oozed from under their toe nails as this was done. The doctor, who later attended these men, stated that had it not been for the prompt and effective services of Navy League workers, every one of the twenty-eight men would have lost his limbs. As it was, only one man was handicapped thereafter.

Our rooms being on loan, as required, to the mobile artillery, for recruiting purposes, it has been necessary for Miss Marion Gibson to change the day for her knitting class from Thursdays to Fridays until further notice.

Housewives are in great demand at our seaports. The Navy League hostels try to give one to each shipwrecked sailor, who requires always a complete outfit. Being a handyman he "makes and mends" for himself. Buy a housewife at the White Elephant Shop. What to put in: shoe laces, brush or cloth, buttons, needles, (not small) thread, any kind and colour, mending wool, safety pins, and an old knife or scissors that will cut.

The production of consumer ration books is the biggest printing job now done in Canada.

Cost of administering the price ceiling, including all expenses connected with rationing, is approximately $1.25 per year for each person in Canada, or about 10c per month, said W. A. Congdon of the W.P.T.B.

Your Hardware Requirements
Our aim is to have on hand your needs. Today it may mean a wartime replacement which is often equivalent and sometimes better.

Around The GRIMSBY High School

By JAN KENDEL

War Saving Stamps!!!

Basketball games scheduled with Beamsville for Friday, March 17, have been postponed temporarily. Inspectors Anglin and Stewart of the Department of Education, visited the school for the second time this year on Monday morning. Their reports will be submitted to the Board of Education at a later date.

Dr. Aubrey Crich gave a very interesting lecture on the "Care of the Teeth", Thursday last. Dr. Crich showed X-ray pictures of tooth conditions and health conditions resulting from infected teeth, along with his address. He recommended that pupils adopt the habit of brushing their teeth twice daily.

The Grimsby Lions Club have voted $200.00 to the school for the purpose of forming a Cadet Band. Plans are all ready under way. Thank you, Lions!

Tuesday evening, members of the school and their friends were privileged to hear the annual Oratory and Verse-Speaking contest. Competition was keen and preparation of subjects commendable. Rev. J. 'LETTER TO SAINT PETER'

Let them in, Peter, they are very tired;

Give them the couches where the angels sleep.

Let them wake whole again to new dawns fired

With sun, not war. And may their peace be deep.

Remember where the broken bodies lie . . .

And give them things they like.

Let them make noise.

God knows how young they were to have to die!

Give swing bands, not gold harps.

To these our boys.

Let them love, Peter—they have had no time—

Girls sweet as meadow wind, with flowering hair—

They should have trees and bird song, hills to climb—

The taste of summer in a ripened pear.

Tell them how they are missed.

Say not to fear:

It's going to be all right with us down here.

—March issue of Reader's Digest.

Do your Calves scour? Red Blood Quickly Tablets will stop them.—Brown's Hardware, Grimsby.

Boy Scouts

At Monday night's meeting, Mar. 13th, the boys enjoyed many tests of patrol competition. One of the events was an outside relay race around the block. Five patrols started off on their race around the block but patrol leader Charlie Schwab's outdug patrol showed their grit and determination by winning and gaining 5 points for their patrol. During the opening and closing circles David Pickett and Fred Schwab carried the colour.

Thanks to Mrs. Jean Millyard our troop now have scout song books, which we use every night at our closing circle. Can the boys sing? Well you just want to be at the school around 8.45 p.m. and listen in.

The following boys passed their compass tests being examined by King Scout Ian Marr: David Todd, Bernard MacMillan, David Pickett, Bobby Fisher, Donald Tracey, Teddy Robertson, David Nickerson, Lewis Larsen. At the closing circle another competition was tried. This practice being in the form of a fire drill.

On the dismissal salute patrols were given three minutes to clear the school. This means that the 36 boys had to change their shoes put on their coats and hats and be on their way home. Oh yes the rush was maddening the jam was terrible but there was no lost motion. At exactly 2 minutes flat the outer lobby was as still as a mouse even to the Acting Asst. S.M. Doug. Bedford who managed to be out on time.

CUBBING

Two more new chums, Pat Ryan and Arthur Henley, passed their Tenderpad Tests and were invested at the last meeting of the Wolf Cub Pack. These two Cubs are now able to take their places in the Parade Circle and share in the Grand Howl Around the Totem Pole.

A game involving three Human Pushballs created much excitement. The Pack divided into two teams tried to shove the Human Pushballs, represented by the three junior Cub instructors, John Millyard, Doug, Alton and Don Mogg, over the boundary line.

During the Instruction Period the Pack found out what it meant to "Chew One's Paw". Merritt Anderson completed his First Star Work and was presented with the badge that six of the leaders now wear on their caps. The signalling class under Don Mogg are progressing rapidly and are already into the third circle of letters.

Shipments of equipment are very slow in arriving, but, since most of it comes from England, the reason is apparent.

Preparations are under way for the Parent's Night to be held shortly.
